Charles T. Sprading: The biggest over-holder of the principle of equal freedom is the state. Its functions are to control, rule, dictate, regulate, and in exermising these functions it interferes with and injures individuals who have done no wrong. The objection to the government is, not that it controls those who invade the freedom of others, but that it controls the non-invader. It may be necessary to govern one who will not rule himself, but that in no way justifies governing one who is capable of and willing to rule himself. To argue that because some need restraint, everything needs to be restrained, not consistent or logical. Thomas Paine: The peaceful part of humanity will be constantly overrun by the despicable and desolate as they neglect the means of self-defense. The supposed silence of a good person entices the ruffian; while on the other hand, arms, such as laws discourage and hold the intruder and plunder marvel and preserve order in the world as well as property. The balance of power is the scale of peace. The same balance would be preserved, all the world was destent of arms, because everyone would be equal: but since some won't, others dare not lie <v>vigilant> <v>vigilant > Aside...
